Council Tax Support Scheme

Have your say

Introduction

In April 2013 the national Council Tax Benefit scheme (CTB) will be replaced by a local scheme called Council Tax Support (CTS).

What is council tax benefit?

Council tax benefit is a means tested benefit that helps people on low incomes pay their council tax. It is administered by your local council (South Kesteven District Council) using rules that have been set nationally and is fully funded by central government.

What is council tax support?

Council tax support will also be a means tested benefit that helps people on low incomes pay their council tax. It will be administered by your local council using rules that have been set locally and will not be fully funded by central government.

Why is the scheme changing?

Because it has to. Central government is abolishing the council tax benefits system and asking us to introduce a local scheme based on local needs and priorities. This scheme will start on 1st April 2013.

The amount of funding we get from central government will also change. It is likely to drop by at least 10% (estimated at around £1million) and this gap will increase further if the number of people claiming support goes up or if council tax increases.

The reduction in funding means that we will have to make some difficult decisions about who will get help with paying their council tax and how much help they will get. Some groups of people will be protected from these changes and will not have to pay more, but others will.

How can I help?

To help us take these decisions we would like your views on our scheme. Your feedback will help us to shape our local scheme to reflect your needs and those of the community as a whole. To assist you in this process we have divided the survey into sections. These are:

- The principles of the new scheme
- Who will be affected
- What the new scheme means to you
- Your views
- Personal information

The principles of the new scheme

These are:

1 Most people (of working age) should pay something towards their council tax

If you claim council tax support (unless you are protected) you will only be eligible for help with paying up to a maximum of 80% of your weekly council tax charge. This means you will be required to pay a contribution towards your weekly council tax of at least 20% and are likely to see the amount of council tax support you get go down.

2 Those with disabilities should be protected from any reduction in support

If you claim council tax support and we consider you to be disabled you will be eligible for help with paying up to 100% of your weekly council tax charge. This means that you will not be asked to make any more of a contribution towards your weekly council tax than you do at the moment and are likely to see no change in the amount of council tax support you receive.

3 Those with caring responsibilities should be protected from any reduction in support

If you claim council tax support and are in receipt of a carer's allowance you will be eligible for help with paying up to 100% of your weekly council tax charge. This means you will not be asked to make any more of a contribution towards your weekly council tax than you do at the moment and are likely to see no change in the amount of council tax support you receive.

4 War pensioners should be protected from any reduction in support

If you claim council tax support and are in receipt of a war disability or a war widow's pension, you will be eligible for help with paying up to 100% of your weekly council tax charge. This means you will not be asked to make any more of a contribution towards your weekly council tax than you do at the moment and are likely to see no change in the amount of council tax support you receive.

5 The scheme should make work pay

This will be achieved by letting those of you claiming council tax support that are working keep more of your earnings before the means test is applied. This means we will take a lower level of earnings into account when calculating council tax support entitlement. If you are in work and have the same amount of income as someone out of work, you will receive more help towards paying your council tax as you will keep more of the money you have earned from working before your entitlement is reduced. This will increase by £5 across the board, from £5 to £10 for a single person and from £10 to £15 for a couple, £20 to £25 if disabled, and from £25 to £30 for a lone parent.

6 The scheme should be available to all those who pay council tax, regardless of the size of the property they live in

We think the amount of council tax support you get should be based on your income and ability to pay, not on the size of the property you live in. Not placing a restriction on the size of the property recognises that different sized families need different sizes of accommodation. This means the council tax band your property is in will not have an impact on the amount of council tax support you will get.

These principles will sit alongside those already in operation under the current scheme. These are:

7 Second adults living in the property should contribute

By second adult we mean someone who lives with you and is over 18, is not your partner and does not pay you rent. Examples include adult children, other relatives and friends. If you are in receipt of council tax support and have a second adult living with you, in most cases the amount of support you receive will be reduced by a set amount depending on the income they have.

8 Benefits should not be paid to those with capital above set limits

If you have more than £16,000 you will not be entitled to receive any council tax support, irrespective of the amount of income you have.

9 Benefits can be paid based on the income of a second adult with a low income

By second adult, we mean somebody who lives with you and is over 18, is not your partner and does not pay you rent. If the second adult is on a low income we can award council tax support based on their income regardless of the level of your own income.

10 Those with relatively more income should pay more than those with less income

Council tax support looks at the amount of income you have and determines the amount of help you need with your bill. Those with higher incomes will be asked to pay a greater proportion of their bill than those with lower incomes.

Who will be affected?

If you are currently getting council benefits and are of working age, you are likely to see the amount you receive go down.

If you are a pensioner, you will be protected from any changes to the amount of council tax support you receive.

If we consider that you or a member of your household are disabled or if you are in receipt of a carers allowance or a war disability or war widows pension, you will also be protected from any changes to the amount of council tax support you receive.

What the new scheme means to you

To help you understand how the new scheme will affect you and your household, we have developed a number of case studies designed to show the impact of these changes. These will vary according to your personal circumstances and if you are working or not.

Because the amount of money they keep from earnings has increased the amount they will be asked to pay towards their bill is less than if they weren't working.

CASE STUDY NINE

Working - Lone Parent with 2 children having a total income of £270 working less than 30 hours per week (made up of wages and tax credits)

Like most people of working age this customer will only be eligible for help with paying up to 80% of their weekly council tax charge. That means the amount of council tax they will be entitled to get help with paying will go down by 20% and the customer will be asked to pay more towards their bill. Because the amount of money they keep from earnings has increased the amount they will be asked to pay towards their bill is less than if they weren't working.

CASE STUDY TEN

Working - Couple with 1 child having a total income of £310 working more than 30 hours per week (made up of wages and tax credits)

| Current Council Tax Benefit Scheme | | Proposed Council Tax Support Scheme | |
|------------------------------------|---------|-------------------------------------|---------|
| Weekly Council Tax charge | £21.29 | Weekly Council Tax charge | £21.29 |

| Income | £420.00 | Income | £420.00 |
| Allowances | £302.00 | Allowances | £302.00 |
| Disregards | £37.10 | Disregards | £42.10 |
| 20% of Excess Income | £16.18 | 20% of Excess Income | £15.18 |
| Entitlement | £5.11 | Entitlement | £6.11 |

Because we consider this person to be disabled they fall within a protected group so see no reduction in support. In addition, because they are working they are allowed to keep more of their earnings so less income is taken into account. Overall this customer is better off.
